(From Tom Mullen's update e-mail)

...we will begin sampling the week of September 16. This start date provides us adequate time to make the necessary preparations for conducting groundwater sampling (i.e., lab coordination, logistics for equipment and supplies, etc.) coupled with the uncertainty of the necessary amount of time that it took to perform well development activities. We envision that groundwater sampling will take the entire week to complete. Prior to sampling activities, ARCADIS will also conduct a synoptic round of water level measurements of the 26 wells (e.g., 17 "YVD" wells and 9 "DC" wells). Groundwater sampling will be conducted by means of a bladder pump and follow the low-flow sampling procedures detailed in Appendix E of the Groundwater Monitoring QAPP.

Kevin,

Are you still planning to begin sampling the wells next week, or this week? What's your best guess at this point on what will be the first day? Rene and I would like to be in the field to observe sampling but not well purging.

Eric
